Issue over two clerks' salaries:

Port shut down, ships idled by union's strike

■ "Dishonorable treatment" brought on labor strike, says union

By Steve Marschke

A labor strike over a three percent pay differential for two Port of Sacramento has left the port idle since Tuesday morning.

The strike was called by the Engineers and Scientists of California (ESC) labor group after it accused port officials of "dishonorable treatment" and of reneging on an informal labor contract agreement.

"A picket line formed at 7:00 a.m.," said a union spokesman at ESC's San Francisco office, who asked not to be named. "The picket line is being honored by other groups."

Michael Aidan, the Senior Union Representative, issued a public statement last week which claimed that "management attempted to renegotiate the wages, temporary employee and unit classifications language."

"The issue is not the wages of one or two people," he continued. "This struggle is for the integrity of the union, respect for all port workers and the importance of negotiating in good faith."

An attempt to reach Aidan after the strike began was unsuccessful.

John Sulpizio, assistant director of the port, said that the port commission had agreed to split the difference with the union after an "honest difference of understanding" after the tentative labor agreement.

"I understood (the tentative agreement) to mean one thing, and they understood it to mean another, and we both signed off on it."

Sulpizio said the issue involved the pay increases of two clerks at the port. The labor contract included a three percent pay hike for all employees, and separately details a ten percent hike for the two clerks. The union maintains that the two increases were cumulative, resulting in a 13 percent increase for the clerks.

"It was my understanding that we were bargaining (the two clerks') increases individually," said Sulpizio, resulting in a 10 percent pay increase for them.

Union members jammed recent Port Commission meetings to express their displeasure with what they viewed was an attempt to renegotiate. And Monday, the commission offered to split the difference, offering the clerks an eleven-and-a-half percent salary hike.

"The unions said their pickets were in their trucks, and they left the room," Sulpizio said. "This morning, they struck."

Seven other unions at the Port honored the picket lines, and work came to a halt Tuesday. Two vessels -- one unloading barley, and one loading rice -- were left idle on the docks.

By dividing the port's annual gross revenues by its 260-day work-year, Sulpizio estimated that the strike was costing the port about $40,000 per day.

"Every longshoreman, every walking boss, every clerk doesn't earn a salary. Everybody loses."

It costs ships around $2,000 per day to dock at the port, he added, although they may find "alternatives" to paying while they are idle.

ESC represents 12 employees at the Port, which has about 35 people on staff year round.

Mudslinging over sewage

■ City manager says he has confidence in public works department head

By Steve Marschke

A Sacramento-based environmental coalition traded salvos with the city of West Sacramento on Monday, as members of the Sacramento Valley Toxics Campaign demanded that West Sacramento fire public works director Larry Gossett for problems at the city's sewage treatment plant.

In concert with two of the public works department's employees as well as its just-retired senior lab analyst, the environmental group also called for criminal prosecution of anyone guilty of wrongdoing at the plant.

"The press conference was to draw attention to a report by the criminal investigations division of the EPA," said the group's executive director, Mark Fleming. The report contained interviews with staff at the treatment plant, which Fleming said corroborated statements by employees Jerry Prosser, John Parent and retired lab technician Ann Reitz that the plant has serious problems.

"In interview after interview, everybody at the plant documented systematic falsification of data -- fecal coliform tests, chlorine residuals and bioassays."

Fleming said the department "rigged the tests" to hide water quality violations.

City Manager Joe Goeden convened a press conference of his own later Monday, saying that the charges were being sensationalized and that the toxics group had brought up nothing new. He also said that the problems were now being addressed by the city and through "appropriate agencies," and bristled at the group's demand to fire Gossett.

"I think we've got some problems at that plant, but I think he's part of the solution," said Goeden. "People from that side of the river aren't going to tell me who our department heads are going to be."

No public works personnel were present at the city-sponsored press conference.

Prosser, an industrial pre-treatment inspector for the department, said he had made Goeden and city council members Bill Kristoff and Cindy Tuttle aware of the problems at the plant at least a year ago. But Goeden said he could recall no specific examples of this.

"If he did, I can't recall it," said Goeden. "They said the management of the department from the top down was dogmeat, but didn't go into any specifics."

Goeden added that the city would "have its day in court" when the evidence from both sides was presented in front of the state Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Fleming said his environmental group was acting in concert with the Sierra Club, the Friends of the River, The California Bass Fishermen's Association, the Washington Outboard Club and California Citizen Action when it protested against West Sacramento.

Also last week, the city was served notice of a possible lawsuit over the water quality issue by Sacramento attorney Richard H. Ongerth. The attorney reportedly represents employee Prosser, but details of the lawsuit could not immediately be obtained.

Lawsuit on shooting is settled

Without admitting any wrongdoing, Yolo County and the California Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement have agreed to pay $450,000 to the family of a man killed while officers were serving a drug search warrant. The shooting also left West Sacramento police officer James McKnight, who was serving on the drug task force during the incident in Madison, fatally shot.

McKnight is the only member of the West Sacramento Police Department to have been killed in the line of duty.

The shooting occurred in 1990 when law enforcement officials entered the home of Geonaro and Maria Orozco while serving a search warrant on the house in western Yolo County. The Orozco's son, Luis -- who was described as mentally unstable - retreated to a back room and

Man recovering from wound to neck

■ Man recovering after gunshot, juvenile could face charges

By Steve Marschke

One of three juveniles present during a shooting at a Michigan Avenue home may face charges, if the Yolo County District Attorney holds him responsible for the incident. The shooting occurred when a West Sacramento man got into an altercation with his estranged wife.

The man, Fred Cornett, 40, is recovering from a handgun wound to his neck.

"The estranged husband went over there to the house," said Sgt. Rick Mayoral. "While he was there, they got into an altercation. Things started getting thrown around, and he got shot in the neck."

The boyfriend of the woman's daughter was at the house at the time, said Mayoral, as were two of his male friends. One of them is believed to have had the gun.

No one is currently being held in connection with the shooting.

"We're giving the information to the Yolo County D.A. and letting them decide who was at fault."

Picketer injured as Teamsters continue strike against Roadway

■ Truckers' strike continues against West Sac firm and some other companies

By David Weller

Teamsters Union Local 150 was served with an injunction by city police Tuesday morning one day after a striking Roadway driver was injured on the picket line. Teamster Keith Clark was treated on Monday for an injured leg. He did not appear on the picket line Tuesday and could not be reached for comment.

According to fellow teamster Len Morrell, who witnessed the incident, Clark was standing in front of the cab of a Roadway truck at the entrance to the company's West Capitol Avenue facility. The driver, who could not see Clark because he was standing too close, tried to hurry across the picket line in order to avoid a confrontation with the striking teamsters. As the truck was beginning to run over Clark, another striking driver opened a valve on the trailer, which kept the truck from moving forward.

Morrell would not identify the picketer who stopped the truck, but said that the man probably saved Clark's life. "He knew the driver couldn't see Keith, and he stopped the truck before he went under the wheel," said Morrell.

Roadway, who filed the complaint which resulted in the injunction, declined to speak to the News-Ledger. Clark has been a member of Roadway's "Road Team," a community education effort which sends drivers into the community and schools to give presentations on how to safely share the highway with big trucks.

The injunction restricts the movements of the picketers at the Roadway cite. It does not effect the actions of teamsters who are picketing Consolidated Freight on F Street near Jefferson Blvd.

Teamsters picketing Roadway are now limited to 6 pickets at each gate, only 3 of whom can march at any one time. Three strikers are also allowed to follow trucks leaving the facility and set up pickets at delivery points while the Roadway trucks are making deliveries.

Teamster spokesman Chris Folkman said that they have used this method twice during the current strike, setting up pickets at UPS in West Sacramento and at Fleming GMD in South Sacramento.

The Teamsters are striking nation-wide over are management proposals to begin some shipping by rail, to begin using part-time workers at about half the hourly rate of current full-time employees, and to pay retirement benefits to those new part-timers through company run retirement programs instead of through the current Teamsters Union program.

The contract between the Union and the shipping companies ran out on March 31. The companies involved in the contract proposals include Roadway, Consolidated Freight, Yellow Freight, and Arkansas Best Freight. No negotiations are currently underway.

Some of the strikers on the picket line expressed a willingness to concede the issue of the use of railways for some shipping, while others believe that if the Union allows the companies to use rails, drivers will be laid off.

On the issue of part-time workers, however, the local union members are united in their opposition to the companies' proposals. On the whole, the union members tend to think that the introduction of part-time workers into the trucking companies would result in eventually undermining the solid middle-class prosperity they have worked to build. "We are fighting for the future wage earners of this community. Now they want to reduce those [new] workers to three hour shifts," said Folkman. He went on to say that part-time jobs would introduce a degree of turnover into the companies that has not existed before.

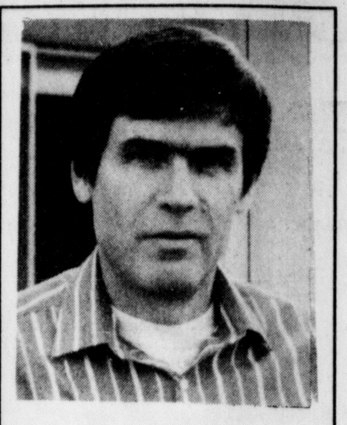

The Teamsters Union currently pays it striking members $200 a week after the first week of a strike. The current strike began on April 5th. Folkman would not speculate on how long the union can keep going before it runs out of money.

The teamsters on the picket-line at Roadway appear to be willing to stay off the job for as long as it takes to keep the companies' part-time worker proposals out of the new contract.

"He knew the driver couldn't see Keith, and he stopped the truck before he went under the wheel," said one teamster

Worried about too much of a feminine half

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

by Daryl Fisher

A friend was lecturing me the other day on the need in this country for more men to let their feminine side show.

"How are we supposed to do that?" I asked her, not exactly sure what she meant. "Can you give me a few examples?"

"Oh, I'm not talking about you, silly," she said with a not so very reassuring pat on the shoulder. "You're plenty feminine!"

Later that evening, as I sat by myself in my backyard watching the sun go down, her somewhat alarming words kept banging around in my head. I even began to worry that maybe I'm not the truly authentic American male I've always imagined myself to be. And the more I thought about it, the more I had to admit to myself that I had never really been very good at 'guy stuff.'

For example, I have always hated — with a passion — working on cars. Over the years, I have reluctantly learned how to pump my own gas and where to pour the water and oil (the water goes in the bigger hole), but the thought of spending hour after hour up to my elbows in grease and auto parts has never really been very appealing to me.

I also dislike fishing (this probably goes back to a long ago Dillon Beach weekend I spent with John Domasky catching a couple of hundred perch only to find out that they all had to be hauled up over the top of a high cliff and cleaned). I guess I just have never quite understood the attraction of sitting around quietly for hours in an uncomfortable boat or on a hot, dusty river bank pitting one's mentality against that of a fish.

Hunting is even worse than fishing. The one time I went was plenty for me. There were — and this is no exaggeration — crazed people in orange jackets everywhere with powerful rifles in their hands shooting at absolutely anything and everything that moved. Plus, after spending a year strolling around in the jungles of Vietnam trying to avoid ambushes, I have developed this deep empathy for the hunted.

I also don't like to go camping. The thrill of going without a shower for three or four days and sleeping on the hard ground basically lost all of its appeal to me while I was overseas. Plus my most vivid memory of going camping is not a very pleasant one. When I was about ten, my dad drove the whole family up to Sly Park for a wonderful weekend in the great outdoors, only to discover that he had forgotten to bring the tent poles. I did manage to learn a whole lot of new cuss words that weekend, however.

I've never much liked drinking beer, either. Not only do I not particularly enjoy the taste of it, but every time I look at a can of the stuff, I end up thinking back to an all-night Colt 45 party I once attended at my fraternity house where, during the course of the evening, I think I died and went to heaven about a half-dozen different times.

I'm also horrible at fixing things around the house. I can replace light bulbs and things like that, but anything more complicated is completely out of the question. In fact, when my daughter recently broke up with her boyfriend, my first sympathetic words to her were, "Now who's going to fix things up around here?" Worst of all is that I've never really enjoyed hanging out with the guys. In fact, I can't think of anything more boring than spending a whole night in the company of only men. That probably goes back to this bowling league I once belonged to (every other frame was a beer frame) where the conversation revolved around cars, fishing, hunting, camping, and dirty knock-knock jokes. Plus everybody got so smashed that the bowling balls became lethal weapons.

"How come you look so depressed tonight?" asked my wife as she stepped out into the backyard and sat down in the chaise lounge next to me.

"Oh, nothing," I said, "I've just been thinking about something. But I've got a question for you."

"What kind of question?"

"Well, would you say that I have an exaggerated feminine side?"

"What?" she asked, smiling.

"I'm serious. I guess you probably don't think of me as a man's man, do you?"

"Oh, I'm afraid you're a man, all right," she said with an even bigger smile.

"Is that right?" I said, sitting up a little straighter in my chair and sticking my chest out.

"Yep," she said, "no doubt about it — you're one hundred percent male."

"Could you be a little more specific?" I asked, hoping to hear her say that I was great lover — or maybe that my walk reeks of masculinity.

"Well, for one thing," she explained, "you can't balance a check book. Why is it that men can't balance a simple checkbook? And like most men, you would quickly die of starvation if you didn't have some poor woman to cook for you. Plus you're incapable of buying, washing, or ironing your own clothes, you go ballistic if someone misplaces the TV clicker, all the kids have you wrapped around their little fingers, and you never want to get up out of your rocking chair and do anything fun. And while I'm on the subject, you also..."

"Thanks," I interrupted her, "I just needed to be reassured."

Members of the Moose lodge and chapter are invited to attend a prime rib dinner on April 30, being given in honor of Gene Evenson and Bette Lake for their services to the lodge and chapter. Gene received the Moose of the Year award and Bette received a nomination for International Coworker of the Year at the convention held in February in Burlingame.

The dinner will be at 7 p.m. for a donation of $8.50 per person, followed by dancing to the music of the "Silhouttes." Members are urged to call the lodge at 371-9684 for reservations.

A public informational meeting will be held on Thursday, April 14, at 6 p.m. to discuss the improvements on Harbor Blvd. from West Capitol Ave. to Reed Ave. (State Route 84) and Reed Ave. to the Sacramento Northern Railroad, including a grade separation of the Southern Pacific railroad crossing in the city of West Sacramento. Discussion of the proposed improvements will be held at the Sam Combs Activity Center (located at the westerly edge of Sam Combs Park) at 205 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Will Sacramento sell off Port land in West Sac?

Something worth watching very closely:

The city of Sacramento recently began batting around the idea of building a large aquarium center as a tourist attraction. To finance it, city officials mentioned the possibility of selling off some of the Port of Sacramento's hundreds of acres, or of using the acreage as collateral. Sacramento city and county control the votes on the board governing the Port, and can pretty much do as they please with it.

Because the Port of Sacramento's property is located in the middle of West Sacramento, and because any plans to develop it will have a huge impact on much of the rest of the city, this idea must be watched very carefully by West Sacramento.

Even if its aquarium idea falls dead, Sacramento will surely be tempted to use the land resources of the Port in some other way sooner or later. Times are hard in Sacramento county and city, and those local governments are interested in finding any new ways of funding basic services like law enforcement.

It looks like they may now realize they control a major real estate resource in the Port of Sacramento.

The best thing West Sacramento can do is something that is long overdue anyway: convene some kind of strategic planning session to discuss alternatives for the Port's future, and then work closely with the folks from across the river to make sure any plans for the Port's lands include some consideration for their impact on West Sacramento.

Joe Goeden, the city manager of West Sacramento, made the understatement of the week on Monday when he said that the Sacramento Valley Toxics Campaign made no new charges in its press conference earlier that day, when it took on the city of West Sacramento and its sewage treatment plant.

He was right: the charges were not new.

City hall has known about the way the treatment plant has been run for at least a year. But it has taken the pressure of the media and of outside scrutiny to finally pry loose some action on the problems.

West Sacramento appears once again to be headed for costly litigation. Much of it this time was avoidable.

Guest commentary:

Big government is no solution to nation's problems

Sen. Johannessen, a Republican from Shasta County, is the incumbent in the state senate district race to be decided at the ballot this year. Mike McGowan, a West Sacramentan and member of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors, hopes to challenge him by winning the Democratic nomination for the seat this June

by Senator Maurice Johannessen

It was President Roosevelt who redefined the function of government in the 1930's. "Government has the definite duty to use all its power and resources to meet new social problems," he said.

This president was a very generous man. Too bad it had to be with taxpayer money. Under his New Deal, there may have been a chicken in every pot, but the goose that lays the golden egg began to simmer into extinction.

I'm talking about the "let's soak the rich" taxation which subjects the super-productive who earn good incomes to unequal tax treatment. It's economically destructive.

The Clinton budget approved by Congress created a new 36 percent top tax rate: $115,000 for single taxpayers, $127,500 for heads of households, $140,000 for joint returns. It also created a 39.6% tax rate for those making over $250,000. These may be relatively well off, but are hardly the "rich" of our society.

I recently read a report by the Heritage Foundation, based in Washington, D.C., which detailed which congressional districts and states will pay a larger-than-average share of higher income taxes. At least nine states will pay at least 50% more than everyone else in the country in new income and payroll taxes, the report cites.

As productive people are taxed to support big government and social programs, they stop investing in businesses that employ people.

California, a state struggling with high unemployment rates, ranks fifth and will see more than $22 billion in new tax revenues (including energy tax, inheritance tax, taxes on social security income) taken away from investors and consumers and sent to Washington for the benefit of others. Because we are a charitable society, I don't have an objection to taking care of the truly needy, however Clinton's new taxes will raise $144 billion which will give non-productive citizens more tax relief and welfare benefits.

Let's call it what it is — social engineering and redistribution of wealth — and both of our U.S. Senators, Boxer and Feinstein, voted for this tax levy, as well as Congressman Vic Fazio and Dan Hamburg. "It only affects the wealthy, and they can afford it," you might argue, but this is not true.

The ripple effect of such actions are a disaster for the economy. It was a bad vote in my opinion. No one can truly believe we can tax ourselves into prosperity.

Think about a farmer who has two fields; one rich in soil, the other barren wasteland. Would he voluntarily dig up the rich soil and scatter it over the rocks? Only a foolish farmer would do that. The wise farmer lets the rich field grow, prosper and produce, and he hires workers from the local community to harvest it. Then he has enough money to buy fertilizer and add good soil to the poor field, and soon it will produce too. The farmer prospers, the workers prosper, the farm supply store prospers, the community thrives.

As the productive people are taxed to support big government and social programs, they stop investing in businesses that employ people. When a business ceases to thrive, it provides no jobs, no future for workers, no values for anyone. The economy stagnates. We live in a society which penalizes people for doing more and rewards people for doing less. Something is desperately wrong. Government has the power to solve the problem, but their solution continues to be tax and spend.

To paraphrase Winston Churchill, government too often looks at business as a cow to be milked instead of a strong horse pulling the cart to personal and national prosperity.

Profit, free enterprise, and the capitalistic system is still the answer. It's still the American way.

I read your Spotlight article on Freddie's Gourmet, and had to write to tell people of this community what great people Bob and Gloria Dunham are.

I had the pleasure of meeting them through the Earth Shuttle Program, which my grandsons are in. They really care about the kids in this community.

I hope we will support their business as much as they support this community.

Thank you, Bob and Gloria, for all your work.

At our next potluck, which is to be held at the Riverbend Senior Manor on April 16 at 12:30 p.m., the seniors will be able to ask questions of the following invited lunch guests and candidates for city council: Wes Beers, Roland Hensley, Randy Cheeks, and Christopher Cabaldan.

So have your questions ready and get to really know your candidates. I hope by having these guests it will help you in making your decision at this important election.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY NOTES

The Sacramento river registered 12 ft. 2 in. U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

Normal attendance has been resumed at the Washington school, all teachers having returned to their classes and nearly all pupils at their desks. There are a few children confined to their homes by severe colds and other light ailments, but that is not unusual for this time of year.

The pupils of the public school, especially the boys of the upper grades, have been busy on the school grounds during the past week and have been doing some good work in lawn cutting and cultivating the flowers. The neat appearance of the grounds lends considerably to the beauty of the building, so much so as to draw the attention of strangers and parents.

Mrs. R. H. Buckingham was taken seriously ill last Wednesday with an attack of acute indigestion. She suffered much for a few hours but had relief when a physician was summoned. Yesterday she was greatly improved.

Local fishermen have been making a slight showing during the past few days but not enough to nearly supply the demand during the lenten season. Reports from Colusa are encouraging because some good catches are being made there.

Mrs. L. Moffett is having her home on Second Street raised and otherwise improved. This became necessary of late because when the water main broke last winter the house was flooded and some timbers rotted. The improvement will add greatly to the comfort of the home.

Anybody could tell yesterday that Spring was at hand. Several of the "boys" were out pitching horseshes, practicing to get into the '49 games in Sacramento in May. Several adepts are putting in some time in the pastime.

Yesterday the tug America came down stream towing Pankost barge No. 7 loaded with 100 cords of wood for fuel and consigned to Hart and Pankost, wood dealers. The wood came from the Feather River section.

J. Nickless and family are comfortably settled in the upper flat of the Hoffman house and the Nickless children are attending the Washington public school. Much repair was necessary to the flat before it could be occupied but that was all finished before the family moved in.

The Frommelt store on Second Street is about to be opened as a grocery by Mrs. M. Murphy, mother of Mrs. Jack Reuter. Mrs. Murphy lately came here from Nicolaus and decided she could build up a business in this town. The store will likely be opened next Monday.

Mrs. H. G. Collins and Mrs. M. J. Sherman are at the Van Deren home from Chico on their way to San Jose. They expect to stay here several days.

Mrs. Florence Johnson is visiting her parents at the Buckingham home to remain for several days. Mrs. Buckingham will accompany her home on her return.

Nobody should forget there will be a dance Saturday night at the public school building in Bryte. The dances given by the Bryte Improvement Club are of the old-time variety—full of fun and nonsense but enjoyable all the time.

Wm. Norton has been confined to his home during the past week with a severe attack of bronchial trouble. Yesterday he was greatly improved.

Miss Emma Waldeck has been a guest of Neville Korrel during the past week during the absence of Mrs. Korrel on a business trip with her husband. Yesterday evening Mrs. Korrel returned to her home.

The death of Mrs. Duncan Fraser took place in Sacramento last Wednesday. She was a former resident of Washington where she was highly respected and esteemed. Lately she has been making her home in Daly City, south of San Francisco.

Miss Mary B. Duff, teacher of the Washington School, who has been absent at her home in Vacaville for the past two weeks because of illness, has returned.

Daily attendance reports given since March 2d by Principal A. L. Case of the Washington School have now been discontinued because attendance of the school is again at normal.

Notices were posted yesterday for the election of Fire Commissioners to be held April 3d.

Miss Harriet S. Lee, County Superintendent of Schools of Yolo County, was a visitor last Tuesday at the Washington School, where she obtained maps made in the geography classes of the school to be used as models in other schools of the county.

Mrs. J. Allerton, who has been ill for the past three weeks, is about again.

Mrs. Edwin Weiger and children of Stockton have been guests at the home of Mrs. Wieger's mother, Mrs. Frank Flatbush.

Mrs. William Hughes came up from Berkeley for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. White, las Sunday.

Mrs. Esther Newton, who has been ill at her home for the past two months is able to be about again.

Miss Esther Mast has returned to last Saturday at the Edwards home, at which the guests were Colonel and Mrs. H. H. Brown, Captain and Mrs. A. Wright, Captain A. Stark, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Ward and Pagnello, Mrs. Annie Edwards and Paul Dupzyk.

Miss Ethel Cook came up from Sran Francisco last Saturday, where she is a student at the State Teachers' College, to spend the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Cook.

Mrs. O. P. Cook, Mrs. Ann Chambers and Mrs. M. Brough went to Roseville last Sunday for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Ford.

Wm. Graham joined the '49 whisker club in Sacramento last Friday and has already started a wonderful growth of whiskers. In front of the post office he had a clean shave, the first in several years, and now feels satisfied he has the prize won for the celebration.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL CONTINUES OPEN WITHOUT "FLU"

Although 70 children were absent from their classes when the Washington public school opened last Monday the school continues to operate without interruption.

True, all classes were dismissed last Monday for the day, but the children returned on Tuesday morning when only a few of the pupils did not make their appearance.

Around town there are several homes afflicted, but from information at hand there are no serious cases.

No deaths have occurred except that of Mr. Steward, and his death could not be blamed to the popular epidemic.

Yesterday a vigorous crop of mosquitoes invaded the town from swamps and pools up and down the river. Evidently they had just emerged from the breeding grounds and were hungry for a little good red blood. They were absolutely voracious caring for neither death nor destruction inthe quest for food.

WEST SACRAMENTO MILL TAKES 70,000 BAGS OF RICE

On the basis of $2.60 for No. 1 paddy, 73,000 bags of rice were sold to four milling companies in the offices of the Rice Growers' association of California in Sacramento last Wednesday afternoon. The successful bidders were the Natomas Rice Milling Company, Growers' Rice Milling Company, Sacramento Valley Rice Milling Company and California State Rice Milling Company. The latter company took 70,000 of the 73,000 sold. The price is the same as that bid at the last sale.

YOLO GRAND JURY WILL ASK SOME MORE QUESTIONS

Woodland, Mar. 2.—The Yolo county grand jury will resume meetings tomorrow for consideration of the report of Certified Accountant W. D. Hamman.

Members of the board of supervisors have been summoned for quizzing as to the charge said to be made in the report that persons in some districts have been permitted to hold down two county jobs.

BORCHERS WILL SUPPLY MILK TO SACRAMENTO HOSPITAL

A bid to Borchers dairy to furnish grade "A" pasteurized milk to the Sacramento County Hospital for 25 cents per gallon was accepted last Monday by the supervisors. In the past, the county had been paying 33 cents per gallon.

A couple of weeks ago the supervisors decided to award the contract by calling for competitive bids. Yesterday a report was made by County Purchasing Agent George Vice that only one bid had been offered and that it was by Borchers dairy.

At the rate of 25 cents, the county is paying 6 1-4 cents per quart. About sixty gallons of milk are used daily at the institution.

SURVEYS TO EXTEND S. N. LINES TO BAY BEGINS

San Francisco, Feb. 28.—The Western Pacific railroad, owner of the Sacramento Northern railroad yetserday started surveys for the exaention of the latter road from Woodland to Vacaville and from Fairfield to Vallejo. The work was first undertaken several weeks ago, when a location gang started out of Woodland.

MOVING PICTURE SHOW HOUSE TO BE OPENED SOON IN WASHINGTON TOWN HALL

Lumber was moved to the town hall building of Washington yesterday to build an operating room at the north end of the building so that a moving picture show might be established here.

Next Monday construction of the operating room will be started and it is barely possible that the show house will be in operation on Monday, April 3d.

Last week Dr. T. H. Dixon of Knights Landing rented the building from the Fire Commissioners and took a lease thereon for a year.

He will fix the building to suit the moving picture business and promises to leave the building in as good shape as he found it.

If the business pays he will continue it with the possibility that he may erect his own showhouse at the end of his lease term.

Dr. Dixon is now operating three show houses, one at Knights Landing, one at Oakland, nd one at the town of Yolo, north of Woodland.

He has been blessed with a great deal of success, so much so that he quit his professional business to ontinue in the showhouse line.

Speaking to The Independent last Friday, he said:

"I will have only first class pictures and I believe I am capable of selecting them through my past experience. Only clean pictures fit for the youngest children will be shown and I am going to try to give the people of Washington the class of pictures that will keep them from crossing the bridge every evening.

"I have had this move in contemplation for some time past, and have been carefully sizing up the situation here.

"I think I can save the people of Washington a long walk over either bridge every evening and give them as good as any Sacramento showhouse.'"

BARRY AND BUCKINGHAM CANDIDATES TO SUCCEED THEMSELVES

Judge Jerome D. Barry of Washington township has made announcement to the Independent and his friends in this district that he will be a candidate at the coming election in November to succeed himself.

Similiar announcement has been made by Constable Henry B. Buckingham.

Judge Barry has served the people during the past seven years in this district, having been appointed to the place on the death of the late Judge Simpson.

Subsequently he was elected without opposition and is now finishing that term.

Buckingham was elected four years ago and since then has conducted his office without friction or criticism.

Rumors of other contestants have been around but so far no definite names have been mentioned.

ANOTHER SUBDIVISION IS PLANNED IN WEST SACRAMENTO

The Carmichael Company of Sacramento has filed a map of a subdivision, which it is about to place on the market, with the supervisors of Yolo county and has asked approval of the same.

At the last meeting of the board the map was approved and the roads specified thereon were accepted as public highways.

The subdivision is located on the state highway west of Carly Acres and will be known as "River Loam Acres."

STREET CAR SERVICE QUESTION UNDER CONSIDERATION BY BOARD

Application to be allowed to discontinue their service to West Sacrament was submitted to the state railroad commission by the Sacramento Northern Railway Company Wednesday.

Losses sustained in operating expenses is given as the reason for the discontinuance of service.

Residents of West Sacramento appeared in an effort to prevent the company from effecting a change. The matter was taken under advisement by the commission.

According to C. R. Detrick, attorney for the railroad, the company started service to West Sacramento in 1913 when asked to do so by the West Sacramento Land Company. The land company was to benefit by the service and was to pay the cost.

In 1915 the railroad reduced the charge to the land company one-half, but has not received any payment since November 1, 1921.

Detrick stated that the monthly cost of maintaining service is $550, while the returns amount to $200.

The daily wages of the crews on the cars amount to $17, while the two cars running return $6.50, Detrick stated.

GEORGE THOMAS IS CANDIDATE FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEE

If there is any man in Washington entitled to enter the race for School Trustee at the election Friday, March 31st, more than George Thomas he is not known now.

The special qualification that makes Thomas eligible is the fact that he is the father of nine children, and so many of them are attending school that he should be deeply interested in the conduct of the institution.

Otherwise George Thomas claims no special qualifications to fill the position of School Trustee.

Nevertheless he is a candidate and wants to be elected.

Thomas was born and raised and educated in Washington. He has never left here except on short trips.

He is opposed by Mrs. I. K. Manchester, who has been a School Trustee for six years and who has devoted much of her time and energy to the affairs of the school.

Mrs. Manchester was mainly responsible for the building of the present school building. She succeeded in getting the ladies of the town behind her in an effort to get a favorable vote from the taxpayers and she succeeded.

The fight is waxing warm and is inspiring new life into indifferent taxpayers.

Something of this character as been necessary for some time past.

A pair of decanters claimed to have been owned by George Washington, were recently sold to a New York bootlegger who paid $1400 for them.

Gee, what a change!

MUCH ROAD WORK IS BEING DONE UNDER LEINBERGER

Work on the construction of the roadway north of the Southern Pacific tracks and on Elizabeth street will be started next week under the direction of Supervisor Leinberger and Engineer Proctor.

The entrance to the incline of the Southern Pacific bridge is to be widened by taking away the first three lengths of iron fencing on the bridge, together with the concrete sidewalks at each side.

This will save that sharp and dangerous turn that has caused so many wrecks at the Third street crossing.

Mary street has been graded and rolled between Second and Fifth Streets and will be macadamized during the coming week.

Second street is now macadamized after grading and will be oiled to make a good roadway to the M street bridge very soon.

This route will be a great relief for the dangerous turn at Fifth street where so many autos have gone into the ditch.

South of the M street bridge on the road to West Sacramento the grade has been rocked and is now waiting for a surfacing coat that will be applied in a few days.

An Omaha man sold his wife six times and after remaining a few days with each of her purchasers returned to him.

Yet this is the year of our Lord 1922.

History group progresses

by Virginia Seamans

On Tuesday, April 19, the West Sacramento Historical Society will hold its monthly general membership meeting from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Turner Branch of the Yolo County Library at 1212 Merkley.

A concerted membership drive will be "kicked off" during that time. Minimum dues are $10 per year, with other types of membership, including lifeitme, being available.

In the interim since last month's installation of officers, the executive baord has made progress in a number of directions. Formal papers regarding the organization have been sent to the state offices entrusted with such arrangements. Thom Lewis, archives coordinator, has put together for the society's use a manual on catalguing and processing of photographs; this should give potential donors of photographs a sense of ease in the security of knowing their contributions will be cared for properly.

Two video cassettes have been acquired for the society's library: "Yolo County, Land of Changing Patterns," and "Unsung Heroines of Yolo County," will each be shown at some future date. Both are the result of work by Shipley Walters, whose book "West Sacramento — the Roots of a New City," was published at the time of incorporation.

Allen Cardero, Bryan Turner and Kathleen Van Baaren, who join Louisa Vessell (president, not pictured) as new officers of the historical society

Plans have been made for a workshop on oral history techniques and uses. By special arrangement, Shipley Walters will be instructing at this workshop, which will be held from 6:15 to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, April 27, at the Turner Library. You can sign up for it at the general membership meeting on Tuesday, April 19.

If you would like further information, please call Louisa Vessell at 451-5749 or Bryan Turner at 371-6915.

And please remember to fill out and return that survey; the society needs your help.

Local gain in jobs, city officials say by Denise Kotko, Community Relations, and Barbara Moore, Economic Development Specialist, City of West Sacramento

In 1993, as the local economy began to show a slight sign of improvement, 872 new faces joined the ranks of the employed in West Sacramento.

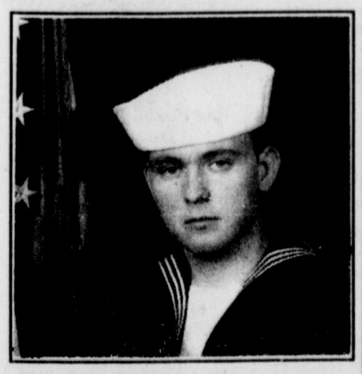

During that year, 11 existing businesses expanded their operations within the city of West Sacramento, creating 396 jobs; and 13 new businesses opened in the city, producing an additional 476 jobs. These figures, taken from the city finance department's business license records, are included in the annual report prepared by the economic development staff of the city's redevelopment agency.

Under California's Employment and Economic Incentive Act (EEIA), West Sacramento was designated a "program area" in 1988. Program areas are often referred to as enterprise zones and have been established in California to stimulate business in selected areas with a high level of unemployment.

The EEIA provides business-related state tax incentives to qualified businesses located within the program area. A qualified business, once certified by the California Department of Commerce, may receive credit for sales and use tax paid on certain machinery; credit for hiring certain unemployed individuals; business expense deduction for the cost of certain machinery; net operating loss carryover; and net interest deductions for lenders.

The objective of the EEIA program area is to create new jobs. Program area tax incentives are intended to attract new businesses to communities, such as West Sacramento, and help create a business atmosphere that is conducive to retention and expansion of existing business establishments. Increased business opportunity translates to increased employment and program area incentives help to stimulate these new business opportunities.

For information regarding enterprise zone program area benefits or to review the annual report prepared for the state trade and commerce agency, contact the city of West Sacramento office of economic development at 373-5843.

Final approval of 'juice bar' law set for tonight

West Sacramento's city council is scheduled to formally adopt a resolution barring nudity in local businesses at tonight's council meeting. The council gave preliminary approval to the ordinance change last week. Such activity is currently barred only in liquor-licensed establishments, but the new laws will make it illegal for nudity to be displayed in any business in West Sacramento.

Sacramento entrepeneurs recently promoted the idea of a topless "juice bar" in that city, and West Sacramento's new ordinance is partly a reaction to those events.

Also on tonight's agenda, the council is scheduled to approve a labor contract with the local firefighters' union.

fired at the officers as they entered, fatally wounding McKnight in the head and seriously wounding another officer.

Luis Orozco was killed in the return fire. No drugs were found, although law enforcement officials maintain that their information on drug activities at the house was valid.

As part of the settlement, Yolo Count agreed to pay $350,000 and the state narcotics burea will pay $100,000.

The legal representation for the Orozco family was provided by the University of San Francisco Law Clinic.
